In this Edition the discoveries made by Karsten, Heimsoeth, Weil, Enger, and many other Continental Scholars, are for the first time placed before the English Student, and further corrections are proposed in short Latin notes. The conjectures of Hermann and his predecessors are either simply recorded and adopted as fully proved, or are altogether omitted. An attempt is made to reproduce the metres of the text in a literal line-for-line English translation. Passages of doubtful or hitherto unexplained meaning are discussed in an entirely new and original Commentary.

History of Assurbanipal, translated from CUNEIFORM INSCRIPTIONS. By GEORGE SMITH, of the Department of Oriental Antiquities, British Museum.

"A history of Assurbanipal, King of Assyria, B.C. 668 to 626. The cuneiform texts are given of all the historical inscriptions of the reign of Assurbanipal, the most important in Assyrian history. Each text is accompanied by an interlinear translation (in English), and the whole book is divided into sections, according to the various campaigns of the king. The long inscription on the decagon cylinder of Assurbanipal, now in the British Museum, is taken as the standard text. This document alone contains 1200 lines of cuneiform writing. The annals of Assurbanipal mention the conquest of Egypt by the Assyrians under Esarhaddon and Assurbanipal; in this part we have the Assyrian account of Tirhakah, Necho I., and Psammitichus I. In the affairs of Asia Minor, Gyges and Ardys, kings of Lydia, come in; and there are numerous wars and other events, including the conquests of Babylonia, Susiana, and Arabia."—Academy.
